LOWER COURT SAYS 8-HOUR LAW IS UNCONSTITUTIONAL

The Adamson eight-hour law was declared unconstitutional by United States Judge W. C. Hook in Kansas City last week on a request of the Government for a prompt ruling, and a conference was held in Washington for agreeing upon a centralized hearing before the Supreme Court in order that a final decision may be given before January 1, when the law, whose enactment by Congress averted a general railroad strike, becomes effective. The Kansas City court made it plain the decision was not based on mature consideration.

Efficiency produces strength, but not all strength is efficiency.

A Good Friend

A good friend stands by you when in need. Mt. Sterling people tell how Doan's Kidney Pills have stood the test. Mrs. Trimble endorsed Doan's over three years ago and again confirms the story. Could you ask for more convincing testimony?

Mrs. N. Trimble, 17 Jamison St., Mt. Sterling, says: "The worst trouble I had was with my kidneys. Their action was irregular and the kidney secretions were unnatural. Finally, I began using Doan's Kidney Pills, procured at Duerson's Drug Store, and I soon felt better. I continued taking them until I was well."

OVER THREE YEARS LATER, Mrs. Trimble said: "All I said in praise of Doan's Kidney Pills before holds good."

MR. JACKSON TO LEAVE

Mr. Press Jackson, who has been conducting the National Hotel in this city for the past year, will retire from the management at the expiration of his lease on January 1st, next, and has rented the Richard Ratliff farm in Bath county, near Sharpsburg, where he will go with his family about March 1st to reside. Many friends here of Mr. Jackson will learn with regret that he and his interesting family are to leave the city. They came here several months ago from Salt Lick and during their brief stay have become very popular. The hotel building is owned by the heirs of the late Clell Ewing, of Bath county, and it is understood that there are several hotel men in touch with the trustees of the estate with a view of taking over the management of the famous hostelry, though no definite arrangements have been made.

YES, LET'S WAIT AWHILE

Mr. Bowman, editor of the Woodford Sun, in discussing the proposed tax law says:

"The people of Kentucky cannot afford to have the tax laws revised under the present administration. Without casting any slurs at all, this administration has too many friends whose interests are opposed to the masses. There might not be any intention to do wrong, but the people would certainly 'get it in the neck'—the farmers especially. The administration which was willing to divide Pike county is not the one to revise our tax laws. Let's stand them awhile longer, 'lest a worse thing befall us.'"

THANKSGIVING PROCLAMATION

President Wilson has formally by proclamation designated Thursday, November 30, as Thanksgiving day. Here follows the President's proclamation:

"It has long been the custom of our people to turn in the fruitful autumn of the year in praise and thanksgiving to Almighty God for His many blessings and mercies to us and the nation.

"The year that has elapsed since we last observed our day of thanksgiving has been rich in blessings to us as a people, but the whole face of the world has been darkened by war. In the midst of our peace and happiness, our thoughts dwell upon the struggles and sufferings of the nations at war and of the peoples upon whom war has brought disaster without choice or possibility of escape on their part. We cannot think of our own happiness without thinking of their pitiful distress.

"Now, therefore, I, Woodrow Wilson, President of the United States of America, do appoint Thursday, the thirtieth of November, as a day of national thanksgiving and prayer, and urge and advise the people to resort to their several places of worship on that day to render thanks to Almighty God for the blessings of peace and unbroken prosperity which He has bestowed upon our beloved country in such unstinted measure.

"And I also urge and suggest our duty in this our day of peace and abundance to think in deep sympathy of the stricken peoples of the world upon whom the curse and terror of war has so pitilessly fallen and to contribute out of our abundant means to the relief of their sufferings.

"Our people could in no better way show their real attitude toward the present struggle of the nations than by contributing out of their abundance to the relief of the suffering which the war has brought in its train.

"In witness whereof I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

"Done at the City of Washington, this 17th day of November, in the year of our Lord, 1916, and of the Independence of the United States the 41st.

WOODROW WILSON.

SELF-DENIAL, OR SENSE?

Says a writer in the Ohio State Journal: "As time moves on the virtue of self-denial is more and more needed. The social fascinations, the alluring fashions, the varied amusements, the fun and fiction in reading, the gauding mania, the every day gossip and all the glitter and hum of this materialistic age strongly demand the exercise of the virtue of self-denial. In fact, there is no safety in any other way. Anyone who lets himself go loose among the blandishments of the day runs straight into the face of ruin."

The writer uses the wrong term when he names self-denial as the virtue that is to resist these peculiar allurements of the age. He should have said "sense." Self-denial somehow includes the idea of a right surrendered, of a legitimate privilege foregone for the sake of a greater end in view.

When we apply the term self-denial to the quality in man that is to resist the extravagant vanities of any time, we pre-suppose his perfect right to the free exercise of these vanities.

This is an error. Man has no right to excuses of any nature. Any violation of the spirit of moderation is a transgression against either himself or his fellow man, according as his act affects the one or the other.

But the writer is right in the danger which he sees for the race in the multiplicity of temptations of his age. It requires a sane and sensible mind indeed to safely steer a life course amid them.

Volumes have been written on the virtue of patient endurance of the afflictions of poverty. Greater volumes are needed on the greater virtues of resistance to the ills of prosperity.

Yes, we say "ills" advisedly. Prosperity is far from being a blessing to a large per cent of the human race. Not a community in the country but can point to numerous instances of the abuse of prosperity. Its wrecks are fairly strewn along life's road.

We sometimes wonder if our schools, our churches, our human betterment societies, and even our homes, are doing their duty in intelligent instructing the race in a course of sensible avoidance of the many peculiar vanities of the age. Most of these vanities are the direct outgrowth of an unprecedented prosperity, and the mind of the young, especially, needs to be particularly fortified against them. Are we doing this?

And again we remind you that this is a good town to live in, a good place to trade in, and a good one to keep your money in. But in time it will cease to be either unless you are as loyal to the town as it is to you.
